

Discovering Dumfries and Galloway's Past

The archaeology of Innermessan

OPEN DAY

SATURDAY 15TH SEPTEMBER · 10AM TO 4PM

Find out more about the archaeology around the motte at Innermessan, with remains dating from the Stone Age to the Second World War.

The motte at Innermessan, seen here from the air sits in a landscape that has been used for a long time – but little survives above ground.
© RCAHMS

Volunteers are carrying out geophysical survey at Innermessan to find out more. This allows us to 'see beneath the soil' without putting a spade in the ground.

- Come to Stranraer Library between 10am and 1pm to see a small exhibition, and view the results of the latest survey.
- See archaeology in action, at Innermessan Farm, just off the A77 north of the town between 2pm and 4pm.

Would you like to join the survey team? No experience necessary – just enthusiasm! Please contact Giles to find out how to get involved.

Find out more

Visit our website at <http://discoveringdgpast.wordpress.com>, or find us on Facebook – www.facebook.com/discoveringdgpast

Or contact Giles Carey, at giles.carey@glasgow.ac.uk or 01387 702056